LEARN MORE ABOUT IT

What makes Sisku'pas Bark an ethnobotanical?

Ethnobotanicals are plants or herbs that are tied to a region and its people. Sisku'pas Bark falls into this group because of its traditional use in the Northwest United States, which includes using the bark to gently buff and polish skin.

What is the difference between Epoch Polishing Bar and Body Bar?

Body Bar is a cleansing bar, while Epoch Polishing Bar is exclusively formulated for deep cleansing, exfoliating, and smoothing.

Is Epoch Polishing Bar for use on the face or the body?

Epoch Polishing Bar is ideal for use on the body. People with very oily skin may choose to use Epoch Polishing Bar to cleanse the face; however, Nu Skin has many cleansers designed specifically for use on this area. Those looking specifically to exfoliate the face may want to use Nutricentials® Brighter Day.

What does it mean to “polish” your skin?

Polishing refers to a gentle type of exfoliation that leaves skin

EPOCH® POLISHING BAR

smoother by removing dead skin cells on the surface of the skin.

How does Epoch support Nu Skin's commitment to become more sustainable?

Epoch product bottles are made from 100% post-consumer resin (PCR), the Blemish Treatment tube is made with 39% PCR, and the cartons are made from 100% recycled paper. Plus, all of our ethnobotanical ingredients come from renewable sources. Please check your local capabilities and recycle the bottles and cartons where possible.
